BESIEGING CLEVELAND.
NEW ENGLAND PUTS IN A PLEA FOR REPRESENTATION.

John Quincy Adams Recommended—Vilas as Alleged Lucky One—Baltimore Hospitality Declined—New Jersey Says a Word—Other Cabinet Gossip.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 21.—(Frederick O. Prince, of Boston, secretary of the national Democratic committee, called on President-elect Cleveland Friday. He argued that the New England states should be represented in the new cabinet. The prospect for the Democratic party was gloomy; there was no independent state in all the states on either side who had acted with the Democrats at the last election, and they could be stronghanded. He mentioned the name of John Quincy Adams as a proper person to be selected, and urged his nomination. If the president thought better to select some other man he would be satisfied with William Endicott, who was also a representative man, and who had already been named to the presidency. Hon. T. A. Collins would also be satisfactory. Mr. Cleveland listened with polite attention, but gave no assurance as to the action he would take on the matter.

Later in the day Col. Jordan, of Englewood, N. J., called, and, it is understood, favored the choice of Gen. George B. McClellan.

Mr. Prince also thought that McClellan and Thurman should be in the cabinet positions there have been numerous applications for other positions. Rev. C. S. Smith, an eloquent colored minister of Illinois, who has been a prominent Republican, and who after being elected to the Chicago Republican convention, has applied for the position of minister to Liberia. Mr. Smith left the Republican party on the nomination of Elihu, and supported Cleveland. Mr. Bradley, also a prominent and eloquent colored orator of Bloomington, Ill., has applied for the position of recorder of deeds at Washington. He is said to be well fitted for the place, and to have been a Democrat since his first vote, and to have served his state for Cleveland, and is an old man.

Mr. Cleveland is still busy on his inaugural letter, but as yet has made little progress. He is a quick writer when he gets fairly at work, and would not have his address finished but for the calls of visiting statesmen.

It is now said the cabinet will not be fully decided upon before March 1, but the fact that Mr. Bayard will be secretary of state, Mr. Garland attorney general, and Mr. Thurman, secretary of the interior, are considered all but settled.

The President-elect Declines the Welcome of Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 21.—In answer to Mayor Lathrop's letter to President-elect Cleveland, extending to him the hospitality of the city of Baltimore while en route to Washington next month, the following note has been received from Daniel S. Lamont, private secretary:

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1885.—DEAR SIR: Mr. Cleveland directs me to acknowledge receipt of your letter, together with a copy of the resolutions adopted by your city council, and to say that while he appreciates the courtesy of such action, he will not be practicable for him to stop at Baltimore on his way to Washington.

Thanks Vilas Has a Sure Thing.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 21.—Senator Cameron, of Wisconsin, says: "I firmly believe that Mr. Vilas, of my state, will surely get a cabinet position. My information, and in fact my authority, is Senator George H. Garland, attorney general, and Mr. Thurman, secretary of the interior, are considered all but settled.

A Canadian Editor Assaulted.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 21.—While Charles Langlois, editor of the Le Lecteur, Quebec, was speaking to the minister of customs in the lobby of the house of commons Friday afternoon, Mr. Langlois, member for Montserrat, approached with the speaker's intention of joining the conversation. Langlois quickly drew from beneath his coat a short stick, with which he struck Langlois several times across the head and face, inflicting some severe cuts. He immediately ran into the common chamber, where the editor could not of course follow.

Langlois was supported in his assault by a notorious bully named Trudel, a member of the river police force for Montreal. Trudel procured a detective to serve a warrant on Langlois in the house, but he was ejected by the sergeant-at-arms. The papers were afterwards served at the hotel. The trouble arose out of Langlois' public reflections on Langlois' wife. The affair caused much excitement in the house.

Cash for Yale Divinity School.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 21.—Subscriptions amounting to $100,000 having been made to the endowment fund of the Yale Divinity school, Mr. Munroe, in charge of the trust funds of the Marquand estate, has according to promise paid in $50,000, which makes the total funds of the divinity school about $470,000 in addition to the present building and the land. Mr. Munroe has withdrawn his offer of money for a college Young Men's Christian association building, owing to the inability of the college authorities to fix upon a satisfactory site.

A Sort of Heavily Small-Tor.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—Horses and cows in the province of Quebec are reported to be suffering from a disease known as equine variola, which more injuriously affects horses than cows, but is possible a special danger in the latter as it is possessed by prominent physicians, who state that the disease can be drawn milk from the diseased cows have eruptions closely resembling small-pox.

A Corpse Buried to a Moping.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—Friday morning a candle set fire to the drapery of a bed on which the corpse of a body was reposing. The corpse was buried to a crypt.

Briefs.

—There will be music at the skating rink this evening.

—The Odd Fellows and their invited friends enjoy a social at Apollo hall this evening.

—Celebrate Washington's birthday by attending church to-morrow. It will be several years before another such an opportunity is offered.

—Officer Ed. Smith captured a tramp last night, and this afternoon the tramp was allowed to count the ties between this city and the next county jail.

—Mrs. H. G. Ebbetts is dangerously ill at her home on South Locust street. The latest reports from her home state that she is no better, but is resting easy.

—Neil Burgess, the popular comedian, will beat the opera house on Wednesday evening of next week. Reserved seats now on sale at Prentice & Evenson's drug store.

—Mrs. Golvins is slowly sinking, at the time of going to press, and her death is momentarily expected. Public journals are seldom called upon to record a sadder case than this.

—Mr. E. D. Bennett, the gentlemanly coachman who occupies the box office at the American express head-quarters, is again on deck after a few days indisposition. The company will continue to do business at the old stand.

—Madison Democrat: "The oldest inhabitant got the water works into a great deal of trouble. The old fellow said there was no need of laying mains lower than five feet, and the frost is now about a foot below them, with the prospect of going down still another foot."

—The new steam heater recently purchased for the west end engine, has been put up and attached to the engine, and works splendidly. "The heater at the east side engine house has been put in the basement, and works considerably better, although it looks badly."

—Racine Journal:—One of the roller rink managers is considering the advisability of running a greased pig around the floor. Ten ladies and ten gentlemen to enter the race and the one catching the pig to have it. Running a greased pig is considered awfully funny in Pittsburg.

—Sheriff Haughton brought a young man named Frank Collins, of Milton, into court this afternoon, to answer to the charge of an assault with intent to commit rape. The bail was fixed at five hundred dollars, and failing to procure that security, he was committed, to await his examination, which will be sometime next week. The complaining witness is a fourteen-year old girl named Lillie Rathman, residing in the same town.

—He appeared on North Main street between seven and eight o'clock this morning, all muffled in beavers, and carrying a heavy cane; he wanted to see a man; and that same man told him the bear didn't see his shadow on Candlemas day, and that we were going to have an open winter and an early spring. I'm looking for that man, and will bet two to one that I get a good look at him, he will have no further interest in an open winter or an early spring. No more bears in mine, and I would like it better if all the weather prophets in America would be compelled to reinforce the British army in the Sudan.

—The funeral of the late Dr. Stephen G. Martin was held at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Leo Beers, near Milton avenue, under the direction of Janesville Lodge No. 55, A. F. and M., of which order the deceased had long been an honored member. Rev. Dr. M. G. Hodge, of the Baptist church, conducted the services at the house, and at the grave in Oak Hill cemetery the beautiful ceremony of the Masonic order was performed. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Fennor Kimball, John P. Drake, Wm. Morrison, M. Peterson, M. L. Richardson, and E. R. Wood.

—Dr. Green, of Constantine, who gives a free lecture at the Congregational church, Sabbath evening, 22d inst., on Turkey and the missionary work there, is an able and eloquent defender of the faith. Having labored in the Turkish empire for many years and occupied positions of large responsibility and extended influence, he is able to both interest and instruct all. I have heard him before and say that those who fail to see his map and hear his address will lose a valuable opportunity for information and benefit. In the absence of the Congregational pastor, let me take the liberty of urging not only my own people, but all who can to attend.

W. F. BROWN.

—In connection with the discussion of "the skating craze," the opinion of a prominent medical authority, Dr. Thad. A. Reamy, of Cincinnati, may be quoted. "The moderate use of the skating machine, as in the family, is not injurious. Roller skating is quite another thing. It may possibly be indulged to a moderate degree by young women, without serious injury, but I have no hesitancy in the unqualified statement that it is an exercise for which women are anatomically and physiologically unfitted. To indulge in this exercise violently (and they do not seem to do it in moderation)—I say that to indulge in it frequently, and for many hours in succession, under excitement and stimulation, as at skating rinks, must inflict lasting and irreparable injury upon a large proportion of the women who are participants."

—The Spectator of September 15, in speaking of Mr. Burgess' success in New York says: "Neil Burgess has captured New York again. Here is an actor who ought to have a considerably large degree of success. His speciality, which is the depiction of verbose old yankee women, is quite as distinct and quite as well done as Denham Thompson's Joshua Whitcomb or the still more wide-rumored portrait, Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle. There is more innocent good tempered laughter in 'Yim' than we have found anywhere since we can remember. The piece is so full of naturalness that one constantly imagines he has been set down in the doorway of a genuine New England homestead. Burgess has packed the theatres here for more than a hundred nights, and this fact is a significant proof of his success."

—Prentice & Evenson, opposite postoffice, Brown's Iron Bitters.

—Our neighboring little city of Edgerton is bound to put on airs, and not feeling able to adopt metropolitan ways, falls back on something primitive. The Edgerton Reporter says: "The members of the Edgerton Athletic Association have organized a fire company with a membership of between 40 and 50. At a meeting recently held the following officers were elected: President, C. R. Bentley; Sec'y, Nelson Taylor; Foreman, Alex. Van Praeg; 1st Ass't, Chas. Whitcomb; 2nd Ass't, P. C. Brown. The company proposes to call upon the city authorities for an outfit of ladders, pails, hooks, etc., and if their wishes are supplied, will be in shape to take charge of a fire should one occur. The Reporter is confident that such an organization can be of great help at a fire, and the company deserves the hearty support and encouragement of our citizens. It is a move in the right direction towards providing some protection against fire, which the town sadly stands in need of."

—With the February edition just received, the Inland Architect and Builder of Chicago commences its fifth volume. This journal, which is the official organ of the Western Association of architects, has rapidly increased in value and importance to the western architect and the builder. Its typographical appearance leaves nothing to be desired, and its columns show that its place as the architectural authority of the west is well sustained. The current number contains an interesting selection of well executed cuts of residences, churches, etc., showing perspective views and plans; valuable articles upon architectural subjects; a complete review of the past year's building in sixty-three western cities; a full account of the formation of state associations of architects in Illinois and Iowa, with the report of that of Minnesota, and a call for a convention at St. Louis, and other valuable news matter. The publication cannot fail to be a large factor in the advancement of architecture in the west.

PERSONAL.

—Mr. Frank Hogeboom, of Campbell Minnesota, is in the city, shaking hands with his many friends.

—Mr. Cornelius Eldridge, of Washburn county, Wis., is in the city this guest of Mrs. Benjamin Eldridge, on Main street. Mr. Eldridge is on his way home from the New Orleans exposition.

—Miss Jessie Sholes, of Milwaukee, who has been the guest of Miss Frances Whitling, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Whitling, Milwaukee avenue, for some days, returned home to-day, accompanied by Miss Lizzie Schicker, who will be the guest of Miss Sholes for a few days.

—Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Stocking left the city to-day for Fort Atkinson, where they will engage in business. Their reputation as first class theatrical artists will be appreciated by the people of the Fort. The Gazette joins with their many friends in the city in wishing their continued prosperity.

—Messrs. E. T. Parnley and Fred Dann, of Sioux Falls, Dakota, formerly of this city, spent a few hours in the city yesterday, calling on many relatives and friends, being homebound from New Orleans, where they have been spending the past month. They return with many mementoes of the Sanny South, and exclaim with the Queen of Sheba, "The land has not been told."

—The Hon. Alexander Graham and wife, arrived in the city yesterday from Salt Lake City, and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bateford, where they will remain several days. Mr. Graham is looking remarkably well. The coming and the going of the years do not seem to have any effect upon him. He is as robust, energetic and as young looking as in the days when he threw all his powers in pressing to an achievement the famous "Graham Law."

—Adjutant M. A. Newman and Judge Advocate Joseph W. Bates, started for Rockford last evening, to attend the party given by the Rockford Rites. A few minutes after leaving the city, the engine broke down, and they counted the ties to Afton, at which place they boarded the regular express. At ten o'clock in the evening they were at Okauchie, and at eleven o'clock this morning the adjutant drove up in front of his office with a horse and cutter, and remarked to a passing newspaper man: "We reached Rockford at seven o'clock this morning, and I left Bates down there." They must have enjoyed the trip.

—An old and respected resident of the west side stepped into a business place yesterday to settle accounts, and in the course of a few minutes conversation, was "ordered out" by the over excited grocer.

The old and respected citizen, who has had the honor of meeting many different people, having been a "bold sailor boy," refused to obey, and showed game enough to maintain his rights, and the business man soon subsided and allowed the settlement to proceed. The old and respected resident felt a little sore, after having nearly circumnavigated the globe, at having been so unfortunate at his advanced years, over three score and ten, to be thus treated in a city where he has peacefully resided for over 30 years.

The Blind Musicians—Vocal and Instrumental Concert.

The Daily Star, South Chicago, Nov. 28, 1884.

As we anticipated, a good audience greeted the blind musicians, John and Mary McKay, at St. Gabriel's hall, Wednesday night. That performance was very good and highly appreciated, and was testified by the repeated applause of the audience. In the piano duets wonderful skill and precision were displayed, not a false note could be detected. In the vocal duets Miss McKay's gentle appearance and sweet plaintive voice, are very remarkable. The brother and sister in residence at the piano alternately in the vocal duets, manifested not only careful training, but also considerable natural talent. In the comic song, "A jolly good laugh," Mr. McKay sang, very heartily, and carried the audience with him in the same strain. The singer declared with no small truth as comedy, "that many of life's, as well as doctor's bills," are remedied by a good laugh! In his comic character songs, Mr. McKay makes quite a success both in his characters and the singing. He is very laughable as well as natural in his impersonations. For instance, the young man suing his girl home for the first time, complaining that the winter is very cold, and he is afraid that his father's slaves would get frozen. His girl consoled him by saying he need have no fears on that subject, adding that she had one of them (the calves), by her side!

Before rendering "Erin's flag" Mr. McKay said: "I don't profess to be an abolitionist. Sometimes I have given this poem by special request, and it did not accord with my sentiments, perhaps I would not attempt it." The blind musicians displayed much force of feeling and vehemence of speech in delivering the poem. It is only just to say that on this occasion John and Mary McKay strengthened their claim to the favorable comments of the press elsewhere as vocal and instrumental performers of no mean ability.

The above performers will appear at the opera house on Thursday evening February 21st.

DISSENSION.

The Lime Kiln Club Intended in a Normal Session Last Evening, Which May Be Attended with Serious Results.

The members of the Lime Kiln club have sustained a reputation for harmony of action, and differences of opinion are of rare occurrence, but at a special meeting last evening, they were confronted by a new element, and a proposition was presented which led to a lively discussion that shook the organization from center to circumference, causing the dry bones of the old list to rattle, and the beams to stand on end for numerical treatment.

The club has done a large amount of business of late, and several new members have been initiated, among the last recruits was a man from Boston, one of your prize, straight-shooted Puritans, come over in the May-flower kind of men, who undoubtedly had forgotten a good deal of useful knowledge about baked beans and brown bread, but his several points yet to acquire about western society in general, and the Lime Kiln club in particular. Among other qualifications worthy of emulation the brother passes a streak of economy which if well practiced ought to make him wealthy. The new clerk of the club very kindly permitted us to look over the minutes of the meeting, which read something as follows: Lime Kiln club report, Feb. 21, 9 p. m. Special session, members all present but six, the absentees were all late recruits, who had not recovered from the effects of invitation. After the meeting was called to order the orchestra delivered an ode entitled "The Last days of winter," which failed to produce the desired effect on account of the low temperature outside and a discord between the bass singer and harmonica blower. At the close of the second stanza, the music quietly died away while the chairman was being rescued from the bottom of a sugar hoghead, where he had gone on an exploring expedition, having tumbled in backwards as the result of misplaced confidence in a treacherous cover, which had been expressly arranged to properly impress new members with the dignity of the third degree.

Order being restored, the applications for membership were examined and found to include one boot dealer, one cod fish vendor and one county official. A committee of three was appointed by the chair to arrange an initiation ceremony which would do justice to the candidates and afford amusement to the club.

Under the head of reports, the new purchasing agent favored the club with an exhaustive document which covered all the territory within a radius of several miles, and seemed to include all the business of the organization. At the close of his remarks, the new brother from Boston stood up on a chair and resolutely the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, Fortune seems to have favored our beneficent order with a purchasing agent of more than ordinary ability; displayed, not only in the matter of bargains, which seem to come to his hand at every turn, as exhibited by his report; but also in his executive ability, which leads him out into various chambers of usefulness, and enables him to accomplish on a moderate salary what has usually required the work and time of three men at a great expense to the club.

Resolved, That it be the sense of this meeting that the offices of treasurer and clerk be and hereby are declared vacant; and that the duties of said offices be transferred to the purchasing agent, with power to act according to his best judgment.

Resolved, As a token of respect and appreciation, that the salary of the brother be increased to $12 per month, and that the club generously allow him one evening in the week to be off duty.

The Bostonian climbed down and took a lowly seat on a mackerel tail while profound silence filled the room and deep meditation absorbed the minds of the corporate body. Finally the chairman suggested that the question was open for discussion, or if they did not care to discuss it, they would vote on it right away. At this point an old man who had filled all the offices in the club and retired several years ago to the rank of private, stood up and said:

"Mr. Chairman and brethren: I haint got nothin' agin the new fledged brother from Boston. For anything I know to the contrary we may be entertaining a angel unbeknown to us, but I have been a member of the Lime Kiln club for a good many years, and I believe in stickin' in the old land mark."

I also believe in a republican form of government. If we should carry out the idea of the Boston brother and give one man the "runnin'" of the club, how long would we have a club to run, in a short time we could dispense with all our officers and committees and the buyin' agent would be the king-bee, and all the business for the club would be to get together once a year and hear a report.

No, Mr. Chairman, as long as the Lime Kiln club furnishes a good place to spend the evening and plenty of innocent amusement, I am in favor of continuing in the good old way. The old gentleman got down, while a round of applause greeted him from every corner of the room.

The down cast member had just taken the floor again and commenced a long dissertation on economy, which might have been continued indefinitely had not Chief Officer McGinley, of the night patrol, struck his head in the door as he passed on his 11:30 beat, and ordered the meeting to adjourn.

The light suddenly expired, and the Boston brother was laid under the table with his resolution.
